"Political parties aren't nearly bold or honest enough on the environment – ourselves included. We have a good set of environmental policies. But we need to ensure that they stay at the cutting-edge of thinking. There's no greater challenge to government than a joined-up environment policy."

Charles Kennedy MP, September 1999

The Green Liberal Democrats exist to:

- a) promote a green approach to policy formation within the Liberal Democrats;
- b) provide information and political education from a green perspective to party activists and elected representatives;
- c) establish and develop links with the wider green movement.

The Green Liberal Democrats have made a major contribution to Liberal Democrat policy over the years, encouraging the party to put the environment at the heart of its policies in all areas.

In the 2001 Liberal Democrat manifesto, each policy section included a "Green Box" that specifically related to protecting the environment. This practice was repeated by the Welsh Liberal Democrats and Scottish Liberal Democrats in their 2003 national manifestos. But politics is about more than manifesto pledges – we need to be pushing the environment at every level of government and throughout our campaign literature.

We organise annual conferences for Green Lib Dem members to meet and share ideas. Speakers last year included Dr Evan Harris MP and our President Matthew Taylor MP.

All members receive our acclaimed quarterly magazine Challenge. This includes articles and features on a wide range of themes, from debating new areas of policy to highlighting how Liberal Democrat councils can put environmental principles into practice.

Our new website (www.greenlibdems.org.uk) contains information about the organisation's activities, as well as the latest news from the Liberal Democrat Environment Team.
